

2002

The US Geological Survey (USGS) has created a new standardized web searchable database of environmental methods for monitoring water quality. The database will allow scientists monitoring water quality to compare data collection methods and find the method that best meets their needs.

<http://www.nemi.gov>